Englewood, N.J. - Smartfish Technologies, a manufacturer of motion-based ergonomic computer peripherals, has signed a distribution agreement with Ingram Micro.

"Similar to Ingram Micro, Smartfish is a company at the forefront of innovation in the technology industry. We innovate by designing cutting-edge adaptive solutions for age old problems like repetitive stress injuries that the computer industry has neglected for decades," said Dr. Jack Atzmon, president and CEO of Smartfish Technologies. "We are ecstatic to support Ingram Micro's commitment to delivering an entirely new realm of healthy, comfortable computing to their broad network of IT resellers."
